My journey as an educator is grounded in the belief that every student flourishes in an environment where they feel valued, encouraged, and empowered. I believe that positive education is essential in cultivating a classroom culture that fosters motivation, resilience, confidence, and a genuine love for learning. By helping students develop both academic skills and emotional well-being, I aim to support their growth as engaged and self-aware learners.

As a Geography and English teacher, I bring the world into the classroom through the lens of human-environment interactions and the expressive power of language. I strive to create a safe, inclusive space where students are encouraged to take risks, ask thoughtful questions, and grow through collaboration.

Ultimately, I aim to empower them not just to succeed academically, but to navigate and understand the world around them with curiosity, empathy, and confidence.
